

Dancing in a Circle

written by Chaim Kramer
February 7, 2021

When we look around us we see darkness and confusion, a world filled with sadness and with depression closing in on us.

The way to overcome these feelings is with Rebbe Nachman's teaching (Likutey Moharan II, 23) regarding a parable of one who is watching everyone joyous and dancing in a circle. The depressed person stays by himself outside the circle of dancers.

The solution to the depression is to take the depressed person and draw him into the circle. This way, not only does that person become joyous, but his presence in the circle adds to the joy of the others!

The same is true with us. We must take our sadness and depression and ring it into our joys and happiness. Thus, we have the capabilities to take sadness and transform it into joy!

This is our mission these days, to take whatever problems we face and transform them into vehicles for joy and happiness. It's a very difficult task, but one we are all capable of!

We have the capabilities to take sadness and transform it into joy!

Please note: There are those who have joined our "Project 148" and are due to receive their gifts of the books. We have successfully reprinted several of the books and they are currently being shipped to the USA. As soon as our inventory has been filled stateside, we will begin shipping the books. Please allow about 6 weeks for your order to be filled.

* * *

FYI: currently we are reprinting several volumes of the Fiftieth Gate series and the Likutey Moharan.

We are also happy to announce that the Breslov Pirkey Avot, along with Rebbe Nachman's Torah, First Volume on Bereishit, is now in stock, so you can order the full set \(3 volumes\) of the Chumash.

* * *

We are now offering a “Book of the Week” edition.

Click here if you want to join our promotion of “Buy one, get one free.”

Best,
Chaim Kramer