

Money and Your Soul: The Spiritual Physics of Wealth with Tanchum Burton

written by breslov.org

January 2, 2015

Does money really make the world go 'round? Is it the root of all evil? Are money and spirituality two mutually opposing forces?

You probably think of money many times throughout each day—every time you pay a bill, cash a check, or read news about the economy. But, how often do you think of the spiritual side of wealth?

Now, you can learn to think about money and wealth in a whole new way.

Money and Your Soul: The Spiritual Physics of Wealth with Tanchum Burton

In Money and Your Soul, Tanchum Burton will explore Rebbe Nachman of Breslov's deep insights into the relationship between money and the soul.

In this program students will:

- Discover the connection between money and the soul
- Gain a new understanding of why we “hunger” for wealth
- Learn how to properly channel your money
- Learn how preventing anger is one of the secrets to attracting and keeping wealth

This BreslovCampus.org special event will be based on Likutey Moharan I:68.

About Tanchum Burton

Born and raised in New York, Tanchum Burton is the clinical director of the Jerusalem Institute for Behavioral Health, and also maintains a private psychotherapy practice. Tanchum has been an educator in Torah and academic institutions, most recently as a head lecturer in the English-language program at Yanar, a training program for educational guidance counselors. Tanchum holds degrees from the University of Wisconsin-Madison and the Wurzweiler School of Social Work, and received his rabbinic ordination from the Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary of Yeshiva University. He's honored to be one of the “Knights of the Rosh Hashanah Table”. Tanchum and his family live in Jerusalem, Israel.

Tanchum in his own words: It's impossible to sufficiently describe the incredible changes the Rebbe's teachings have brought into my life, but I've discovered that if you're ready for a journey towards a deeper understanding of basically everything, you've come to the right place. Fasten your seat belt!
