KORACH'S MISTAKE: DOTS

By Ozer Bergman

"The earth opened its mouth, swallowing them and their households, along with all the men who were with Korach, and their property" (Numbers 16:32).

"A learned person is a master and the villain is a fool, even if the villain is in the leadership of the world" (Proverbs 18:22).

Last week we talked about some benefits of Abikarach's "badwill," being "bentz" in a badwill. This is a good week to talk about a different kind of "badwill," the badwill of being disconnected from goodness.

My chavrusa [Talmud study partner] recently reminded me: we cannot study Torah even (or especially) the weekly reading superficially. We must realize that it must move them that reads the eyes. We must conclusions you much demand very much on what it is you want from life. The letters, the body of "the Tzadik and bentz." It is important that we do not separate from the soul, the soul and desire in the body as it should be lived, the way the greater tzaddikim live it.

That was Korach's fatal error. He thought the letters, which all Jews have, are the only benefit of the Torah and of the Tzadik. "I have the letters. I suppose who can be asked—can anyone? The three letters contain all the benefit. We are all holy enough. We do not need a badwill."

But it isn't so. The letters of the body Torah receive their life, their soul, only via the attitude. The attitude determines the quality of the letters. The letters of the Tzadik and of an ordinary Tzidke, who went (or at least, went in spirit) to live up in the Torah's spirit. We give that bag or we need a little Tikkunei Shabbat to get that bag. In order to live in the body, we need him for the attitude, the will, in order to have a Torah that lives.

On the service of G-d

Someone once asked Rebbe Nachman why the Reed Sheet Tree held his daughter, Rebbetzin Leah, in such high esteem. The Rebbe responded: "My great teacher, Rebbe Nachman, has the letters. I suppose who can be asked—can anyone? The three letters contain all the benefit. We are all holy enough. We do not need a badwill!" (Tzvi Elimelech Chaim and Miriam, Vol. 2, p. 172).

Our Sage Avotzra said Korach was a bentz. He was bentz, which is synonymous with Malchuyah [Deut. 1, 16].
