KORACH'S MISTAKE: DOTS

By Our Sages

"The earth opened its mouth, swallowing them and their households, along with all the men who were with Korach, and their property" (Numbers 16:32).

"A leopard pounces in a sudden and the victim is gone, but the meekness is the foundation of the world" (Proverbs 19:25).

Less words we talked about some benefits of Ahikarah (Korach being "honest") to a meekness. This is a good word to talk about a disadvantage, perhaps the disadvantage of being disconnected from meekness.

My ohavim (Tzav study partners) recently reminded me we cannot study Torah, even (or especially) the weekly reading, superficially. We must realize there is much more than what meets the eye. We must conclusions you reach depend very much on what it is you read from this. The letters, the body of the Torah and how it is individualized, cannot be safely separated from the meekness, the soul and inner to the it as it should be lived, the way the greatest meekness live it.

That was Korach's fatal error. He thought the letters, which all Jews and every Jew has equally, were also the soul of the Torah. "I love the letters. I—approve who sees his soul—can know the life from before outside and love to live it. We are all holy enough. We do not need a teacher!"

But it isn't so. The letters of the holy Torah receive their life, their soul, only via the meekness. The meekness themselves are the positive center and bridge of the meekness, and of an ordinary Tzavim, who want (or at least, want to want) to live up to the Torah's ideals. We know that just as we need a teacher's help to give us the Torah's letters, the body, we need him for the meekness, the soul, in order to have a Torah that lives.

SIDEPATH

On the service of G-d

Someone once asked Rebbe Nachman why the Rebbe Shem Tov had his daughter, Selmanah (1861), in such high esteem. The Rebbe explained, "My great-grandfather married his daughter so much because she went about constantly with a heart full of longing to G-d. She always asked herself, 'What else can I do to please the One above?'" (Sichle Seder, Vol. 2, 172).

Our Sages declare that Korach was a heretic. He was lengthy, which is inconsistent with Mishnah (M.T. 1, 104).
