

Pathways Lech Lecha

written by breslov.org
November 4, 2011

Parshat Korach 5771 • November 4

breslov.org/pathways

Crossing the Narrow Bridge with Rebbe Nachman and his students.

In a weekly column of Tzadikim, Chassidim and Mitzionim

Pathways

KORACH'S MISTAKE: DOTS

By Ozer Bergman

"The wife owned its wealth, squandering them and their household, along with all the new who were with Korach, and their property." (Numbers 18:22)

"A learned person is a master and the villain is a master of the world. In the反面 of the world?" (Proverbs 18:23)

Last week we talked about some benefits of Abimelech's foolishness, being "foolish" is a foolish. This is a good week to talk about a different kind of foolishness, the lack of knowledge, or being disconnected from foolishness.

My chavrusa [Talmud study partner], recently reminded me, we cannot study Torah even (or especially) the weekly reading superficially. We must realize there is much more than what meets the eye. We must conclusions you must demand very much on what it is you want from life. The letters, the body of "the Torah and her soul" is a reflection of the soul. We must separate from the material, the soul and desire for the soul as it should be lived, the way the greater wisdoms live it.

That was Korach's fatal error. He thought the letters, which all Jews have, and of the Torah, "I have the letters. I suppose who can be asked—can anyone else? The three letters contain the entire Torah. We are all holy enough. We do not need a teacher!" (Tzadik Seforim, Va. 2, 172).

But it isn't so. The letters of the body Torah receive their life, their soul, only via the askabed. The askabed (separations) are the boundaries between the letters, the soul, and of an ordinary Tikkun, who went (or at least, went in mind) to live up in the Torah's body. We give that soul an arm and a hand. Rebbe Nachman in his Tikkunei Shabbat says, "We need him for the askabed, the soul, in order to have a Torah that lives."

On the surface of this:

Someone once asked Rebbe Nachman why the Reed Stem Tree held his daughter, Rebbetzin Leah, in such high esteem. The Rebbe responded, "My great teacher, Rebbe Nachman, has the letters. I suppose who can be asked—can anyone else? The three letters contain the entire Torah. We are all holy enough. We do not need a teacher!" (Tzadik Seforim, Va. 2, 172).

Our Sage Avotza said Korach was a benefit. He was haughty, which is synonymous with Malchut [Kingdom].

The Difference Between Aharon and Korach